World War II Veterans Join Antioch Legion

Naval Post 372 of Chicago Conducts an Impressive Ceremony for Antioch

Veterans of the Second World War, with the exception of two men who served in World War I, composed the group of 15 candidates initiated into Antioch Legion Post No. 748 at beautifully conducted and well attended ceremonies last evening in Antioch Township High school auditorium.

A team from Naval Legion Post No. 372 of Chicago conducted the initiation.

Noel White of Fox Lake, Second Division service officer, was the speaker, telling of the Legion's efforts on behalf of veterans of the present conflict. He also spoke of pending legislation in their behalf.

Social Hour at Hall

Otto S. Klass acted as master of ceremonies. The meeting was opened and closed by Commander Floyd Horton. Clarence Waters, acting sergeant-at-arms, escorted visitors and officers who were introduced. Brief talks were given by John L. Horan, Antioch, junior vice commander, (who also introduced the main speaker), and the senior vice-commander, John Casperson, Lake Forest.

Music was furnished by the high school orchestra. Walter Hills and Clarence Shultis acted as the color guards. The program was under the general chairmanship of Harry Message.

After the initiation, which was open to the public, Legionnaires and their guests enjoyed a social hour and refreshments in the Legion hall.

Treasury Department States Thanks for War Loan Assistance

The following letter has been received from the U. S. Treasury War Finance Committee of Illinois—

Dear Editor:

With the close of the Fourth War Loan campaign, we of the War Finance Committee of Illinois wish to express our deep appreciation and sincere thanks to the publishers and staff of the newspapers whose generous cooperation has made valuable contribution to the success of the drive.

The people of Illinois have achieved another outstanding record, and they have helped us complete another Treasury Department assignment. Illinois has sold 134 per cent of its quota, topping the national average of 120 per cent. Total sales for all issues amounted to $1,208,900,000—our state quota was $905,000,000. Sales of E bonds exceeded all previous records; we sold $203,889,000 or 101 per cent of the $201,000,000 quota.

We are most gratified with the unstinted cooperation you have given our state organization. Your splendid assistance has been a most effective factor in helping us reach all your readers who responded so magnificently with their bond purchases and helped swell our state total.

HAROLD H. SWIFT,
State Chairman.

Six Antioch Residents Make Blood Donations

Residents of the Antioch area who recently gave blood to mobile units of the Red Cross Blood Donor service include Florence Miller, George Masopust, Mrs. Marguerite LaParr, Miss Elsie Malget and Walter Solomon.

Mrs. LaParr and Solomon made their third donations when the mobile unit visited Waukegan March 8-9; Miss Malget was also a donor at this time.

Masopust made his second donation when the unit visited the Hall Printing company March 13-17.

Florence Miller was a donor at Douglas Aircraft, which was visited by the unit March 28-31.

Red Cross Drive Has Final Quota of $2,496

Antioch township's Red Cross fund totaled $2,496.14 when the drive closed Saturday, Roman B. Vos, campaign chairman, announces.

Additional donors included Les Bell and Mrs. H. Heine.

Campaign committees were greatly pleased with the response to the drive, Vos stated, expressing thanks to all who helped to make it a success.

Honest Cabbie Sends Forgotten Package Here

The package has been found, but where, asks Village Marshal Fred Petersen, is the owner?

Marshal Petersen reports that he has received a package which two Antioch women left in a taxicab in Milwaukee last Friday.

The "cabbie" didn't know their names, but learned that they were from Antioch, so sent the package to Petersen as chief of police, hoping that he could learn the identity of the owner.

News of the Boys in Service

A recent visitor to the Antioch News office was Capt. Donald C. Coltrin, whose appointment as assistant commanding officer of Area E, District 3, Sixth Service command, was announced recently by Col. John T. Rhett, post commander at Fort Sheridan. Capt. Coltrin replaces Capt. Morris E. Hall. Area E includes all of Lake and McHenry counties in the state of Illinois.

Capt. Coltrin, a former resident of Oak Park, started his present tour of active duty in November, 1942, when he assumed command of the Headquarters and Headquarters Detachment of the Sixth Service Command rehabilitation center, stationed at Ft. Custer, Mich. He was transferred to Fort Sheridan when the center was moved there Oct. 18, 1943.

His World War record shows that he was a member of the Illinois National guard, 6th infantry, and was called to active duty March, 1917, as a corporal. He served in France for a year as a member of the 123rd Field artillery of the 33rd division. He was commissioned as a second lieutenant in the Reserve corps in 1924.

Sgt. Peter L. Zeien, New York APO, doesn't agree with Shakespeare's description of the island that is, said the poetic William, a "little gem set in a silver sea."

"I enjoy reading the News, although I haven't been in your part of the country for quite a few years. Of especial interest to me is the News of the Boys column, as that is where I become re-acquainted with the fellows and girls I went to school with."

"Have been in England for some months now, but can't say I'm crazy about the place. Now that spring is approaching, we get an occasional glimpse of the sun. This can only be appreciated after spending a winter here."

"The News has been arriving regularly despite the wrong address."

"Hello, folks!" comes T/Sgt. Lloyd Drom's greeting via V-Mail—"I have not written to you in quite a while, so I think it is time I did. The paper sure is a morale booster when it gets here. I read where the rest of the boys are and how they are doing."

"I am here in Italy working on planes. I haven't met anybody from home yet since I came over seven months ago. But who knows? I may meet one tomorrow. The country is pretty nice, with mountains in the distance. I like Italy a lot better than I did Africa. We get rationed beer once in a while and expect to get cokes soon. Sheets' Dunford has written me several times, but he is in India."

"Say hello to all my friends, and thank you for the paper."

One of the Pape boys—we don't recall at the moment whether it was Cpl. Henry or Earl A., S 1/c—presented to us a copy of the southwest Pacific edition of the servicemen's magazine, "Yank Down Under." Among its many fine articles and illustrations is a series of photographs on the ceremony of crossing the equator, as seen by "See Here, Private Hargrove's" buddy, Sgt. John Bushemi.

T/5 J. L. Seib, Fort Fisher, N. C., has been spending a 12-day furlough with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Seib of Petite Lake.

William A. Johnson, who was promoted to T/4 on April 4, has been transferred from Camp Gordon Johnston, Fla., to APO 159, San Francisco. He is still attending school there, and likes the life he leads, he says.

From "Somewhere in Italy," Pvt. Frank Ruschensky writes—"This outfit has been in combat. They have a very good record to their name."

"I haven't been in combat yet, but am anxious to get this (censored by ed.) war over with so we can all come back home."

Thordarson Company Opens Branch Plant Here This Monday

Chicago Electric Manufacturing Concern Takes Over Danish Hall

A branch plant of the Thordarson electric manufacturing company, Chicago, was opened here Monday in the Danish hall, 254 Ida avenue.

George Garland of Antioch, who has been employed by the company in Chicago during the past two years will act as local manager, Chicago representatives of the firm have announced.

The Thordarson company is reported to have been engaged in the manufacture of electrical and radio transformers for the past 49 years. Since Pearl Harbor, it has greatly expanded its manufacturing activities and has been engaged in furnishing radio and other communications equipment to the army, navy and signal corps. About 900 persons are said to be employed in its Chicago plant.

The work to be done here will be the hand finishing of machine-wound coils, and the training of workers has already begun. Re-modeling of the hall for the plant was begun last week.

If the Antioch plant proves successful, company representatives have stated, it may later be expanded. Company men expressed themselves as being greatly pleased over the facilities offered here.

The plant will also offer local women and girls who would not otherwise be able to engage in war work an opportunity to do so.

The chief expressed himself as anxious to secure recruits from this area.

Restrain Those Roving Chickens, Officials Ask

With newly-planted Victory gardens about to come into being in unprotected yards, and with new seedlings of flowers or freshly planted shrubs vulnerable to attack, the co-operation of dog and chicken owners is being sought by village officials in order to prevent damages and hard feelings—not to mention hurt feelings.

In a notice published on another page of this issue of the Antioch News, Chief of Police Fred Petersen calls the attention of owners of dogs and fowl to village ordinances which apply to these matters.

It is felt that at this time suitable precautions to keep one's dog or chickens from scratching up the neighbor's garden are not only considerate—but patriotic, the village officials state. They add that the co-operation of all the townspeople will be greatly appreciated by those entrusted with enforcing the law.

What's Brewing in the Political Pot?

Wendell Wilkie's "abdication" after being repudiated at the polls in the Wisconsin primaries recently is only one of the surprising things happening in American politics these days.

The Republican party, experiencing a resurgence of life, seems to feel that maybe it's going to be able to do something in the elections this year, but it isn't exactly sure just what that something is going to be.

Far from lacking candidates, it is baffled by a super-abundance of them; and it is figuratively quivering with anxiety lest, amid the bickering of GOP aspirants and their supporters, the Old Man of the White House, FDR, is going to renew his lease again.

Cries of "Fascism," "Nazism," and "Entrenched Bureaucrats!" rend the air, and there is, actually, a very real fear that even in time of war there can be such a thing as letting the government get too strong a hold, so that it becomes the tail that wags the dog.

Observers are not lacking who point out that one of the first steps in such set-ups as came into being in Germany and Italy is one whereby people are made to feel helpless and to sense a "dependence on the government."

There are many others who are not, in a sense, "trained" political observers, but "mere" voters, who are quick to point out that a government never, in actuality, DOES anything for the citizens, except to act as agent in accomplishing the things the citizens do for themselves.

In all history, we ourselves have never been able to discover that the government of any country ever DID anything for the people of that country, so to speak, although there have been some governments for which the people did quite a lot.

As nearly as we can figure it out, under our system of government here in the U. S. A., the government consists of citizens who are chosen to act as the lawyers, business agents and personal representatives of the people to take care of a lot of pretty important chores that can best be handled in that way.

If President Roosevelt were to die tomorrow, if all our Army generals and Navy admirals were swept away at once, we have faith enough in the common people to believe that other equally able would step forward to carry on, with equal efficiency, the work that must be done at home and abroad.

It isn't the Presidents and the generals who run the country and win the wars. It's the John and Mary Q. Citizens and the G. I. Joes. If we keep that little fact pretty firmly in mind we'll never know the tragedy of seeing our country undermined by fascism in any guise . . . and if our general keep it in mind, it looks like we're going to win the war.

Quotes of the Week

"Unless we adjust costs so that it will be profitable to produce, and insure to management the rights which incontestably belong to it, we better stop looking for full employment."—Professor Leo Wolman, Columbia University.

"Too much extension of Federal power is destructive of self-direction. Social salvation will not be attained by turning over activity to a vast impersonal machine in Washington."—Arthur A. Ballantine, former Undersecretary of the Treasury.

"The one thing the world will need desperately after this period of world-wide destruction ends is production—mass production of more things in greater quantities than the world has ever needed before. No government can fulfill that need. It can be fulfilled by the labor of the hands and minds of people."—George W. Romney, Director, Automotive Council for War Production.

"The present global struggle seems to be stimulating a growing desire for cigars, particularly on the part of younger men."—Everett Meyer, cigar manufacturer.

Planless Planners

GEORGIA FARMER QUILTS IN DISGUST

Overcome by what he termed the red tape of government bureaucracy, James H. Wylie, Rome, Georgia, merchant and farmer, is abandoning his fertile 1,500 acre farm near Vincent, Alabama.

"I think it's a hell of a note," he said, "when I have to pay taxes to be put out of business and stop producing at a time when food is needed perhaps as never before and when the agricultural department is pleading with the farmers to produce on the largest possible scale."

"Bureaucracy has got the agricultural population so hopelessly entangled in red tape that unless drastic reforms are put thru promptly the food problem will become more serious than it is, and it's bad enough now."

Wylie said he is getting rid of his herd of 250 beef cattle, for which he will be unable to grow feed. Instead of the 10 to 20 men he once hired to work on his farm, he said he had only two employees left and told them they "can go fishing."

Smallest Balkan Nation

With the exception of Albania, Bulgaria is the smallest of the Balkan nations. It had an area in 1939 of a little less than 40,000 square miles, about equal to that of the State of Virginia. It occupies, however, a significant cross-link position between Rumania and Greece on one hand, and Yugoslavia and Turkey on the other.

Guardhouse Is Brig

The Marine will say deck for ground, bulkhead for wall, sack for bunk, sick bay for dispensary, brig for guardhouse, scuttlebutt for rumor and boot for recruit. He will say "Let's secure" when it is time to quit work, while the soldier will resort to the more common "Let's knock it off."

Survey as employed in the Marine Corps can be applied to a person when it means someone is being sent back to the States for medical reasons, or to equipment when it refers to damaged gear which is being replaced. The Army has no such all-embracing word and when a buddy is being relieved for medical reasons he is being evacuated. When old equipment is turned in for new, it is being salvaged.

A non-commissioned officer in general charge of his area for the day is a duty NCO in the Marine Corps. In the Army he is a CQ (in charge of quarters). A GI in Army phraseology, refers to any enlisted man. The Leathernecks use GI to describe a person, usually an officer, who is strictly regulation in every respect.

"On the Cuff" Means "Jawbone" A man who tries to curry favor with his superiors by agreeing with them or complimenting them is an ear-banger in the Marine Corps. In the Army he is a smoke-blower.

Any transaction made on credit is a jawbone, as far as Leathernecks are concerned, but soldiers call it "on the cuff." The Army says gigger when a man is called down at inspection, but in the Marines he is read off.

Lack of Information May Imperil Social Security Benefits

Inaccurate advice from well-meaning but inadequately informed friends may be costing some retired workers money in the form of old-age and survivors' insurance, Mr. Bernard Barnett, manager of the Waukegan, Ill., office of the Social Security Board, said today. The same kind of advice also may be keeping benefit checks from widows, children and parents of workers who die.

To counteract this, Mr. Barnett advised that every worker who is 65 or over and has been working in insured employment—generally business and industry—should get in touch with the nearest office of the Social Security Board immediately for information as soon as he quits his job. Even a brief delay may result in a material loss to retired workers. If he is qualified for benefits, the Board will assist him to file a claim. If he needs additional work in covered employment to qualify, he will be told just how much more, Mr. Barnett said.

Similarly when a worker dies, if social security taxes have been taken from his pay, the widow or other close relative should contact the Board's office immediately. Full assistance in completing claims will be furnished by the field office. Contacts may be made by visit, by letter, or by telephone.

Several retired workers who have delayed in filing claims have informed the Board that friends had told them they were not eligible, Mr. Barnett said. "The best thing to do," he added, "is to come to our office and ask about such matters. We have the exact information."

While provision is made for some back payments on delayed claims, Mr. Barnett said, delay may reduce the amount of benefits, or wipe them out entirely in some cases.

"Many workers of retirement age tell us that they did not realize that they may continue to earn credits toward benefits after reaching 65, or that they may work in covered employment, even after benefits start, without sacrificing their retirement insurance rights."

"The true facts are that a worker may qualify for retirement benefits at any age about 65, and that he merely gives up his benefit for those months in which he makes as much as $15 in covered employment. He might work one month and give up his benefit, and not work the next month and receive his benefit."

Develop Microphotography

Newspaper files are only one of many outstanding uses for microphotography. V-mail for the men overseas is the best known. Recently developed films record fine detail so accurately that, it is said, "Gone With the Wind" may be reduced to a roll of film about the size of a five-cent spool of thread.

"There are some very nice chaplains over here, and if some of the clergymen back in the States could see some of the suffering going on over here, they would probably change their minds about what the fate of the Germans should be."

"Keep up the good work on the home front. Wishing you all a very happy Easter day."

The award of a second cluster to the air medal for "exceptionally meritorious achievement while participating in 15 bomber combat missions over enemy-occupied Europe" to T. Sgt. Charles C. Anderson, 19, was announced recently "somewhere in England." Sgt. Anderson, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Burt Anderson, Orchard street, is a radio operator on a Flying Fortress.

"There is still an acute shortage of beer" where M. T. Sgt. Frank T. Farm is stationed, c/o San Francisco Fleet postoffice. "They keep saying we are going to get some, but it never seems to come through. We have a nice place to swim in now. I have tried fishing a few times, but without much success, so I have given it up as a bad job."

LEGAL

NOTICE

During past weeks a number of complaints have been received by village officials with regard to damages done by dogs or chickens running at large.

In most cases the owners have been willing to co-operate in abating nuisances of this sort. With the shortage of adequate help for carrying on regular work and improvements about the village, further co-operation on the part of the public is being requested.

Attention is also called to Chapter 2 of the village ordinances, with regard to dogs running at large, and Chapter 5, Section 1 of the village ordinances, which reads:

"That all owners or keepers of domestic fowls be and are hereby notified to keep said fowls from running at large."

Section 3 of the same ordinance states that:

"Any person or persons, owner or keep, who shall not comply with the provisions of this chapter shall be liable to a fine of not less than Five Dollars ($5.00) nor more than Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00), and costs, for each and every offense."

The Observer

Copy-cutting an editorial bit from the Wkn. News Sun, our esteemed contemporary—

"Our advice to horse owners at Hialeah Park in Miami (that bourn from which, apparently no traveler returns) is to lock the nags securely in the stable every night, and post a guard. That lost colony of stranded, gasoline-shy tourists down there is getting desperate."

Brother, have you ever rid a hoss TEN miles—let alone 1,000? Them nags is safe.

Every once in a while there is some little item in the newspapers that you somehow notice a lot more than the big ones which are no doubt more important. Like this Associated Press despatch from Orange, N. J., for instance:

Lt. Otis Webb Dewey, who never saw his father, a World War I casualty in France, has been killed in the fighting at Anzio without seeing his own son.

The War department reported the death of the 24-year-old Ranger lieutenant. He was the son of the late Lt. Charles Davey of Orange and Mrs. Rudolph Eberstadt of Canton, O.

There isn't much more a person can add to that, is there? About all you can do is hope that the youngster grows up to appreciate the Dad and Granddad he never knew. And somehow, we think he will. We hope the rest of us, too.

oOo

We can only hope, too, that the men of Bataan and Corregidor, and Pearl Harbor, were somewhere listening when General Douglas MacArthur spoke at a dinner commemorating his second anniversary as supreme Allied commander in the Southwest Pacific, and repeated his pledge, "I shall return to the Philippines," adding:

"Nothing is more certain than our ultimate reconquest and liberation from the enemy of those and adjacent islands. One of the greatest offensives of the war will at the appropriate time be launched for that purpose."

"With God's help, it should be decisive not only of redemption but of Japanese isolation from her southern conquests and of Chinese restoration of Pacific ocean island communications."

"On such occasions as this my thoughts go back to those men who went on their last crusade in the jungle thickets to the north where they made the fight that saved this continent (Australia.)"

"With faith in their hearts and hope on their lips, they passed beyond the mists that blind us here. Their yesterday makes possible our tomorrow."

oOo

Pigs is pigs, but Norb Klaus, who farms out by the Lotus school, can keep his to him, say the kids attending sch. Seems like the pigs had a way of getting out now'n then and chasing the young'uns—no doubt to see if they had anything good to eat in their lunch buckets. So they told teacher Arlene Lewin, who told the sheriff's dept., which told deputies Frank Kaslauskey and Geno Palmieri, who told Norm—that the pigs, like Mary's lamb, were persona non grata—meanin' they didn't want 'em or something—at school or on the way there. Klaus was the end guy in the little game of passing on the word about the pigs. He said he'd lock 'em up and they wouldn't go there any more.

oOo

Brushing up on the old reading matter, we notice an Oregon truck driver sent in an explanation of an accident to the state motor vehicle accident bureau:

"Well, it was just about daybreak. I had the old corn popper in the whistle nearly winding about 35 when I saw an old hayshaker coming across the side road."

"I gave him the horn and pinched the air a couple of times, but he stopped for the highway, so I kicked it in direct and stuck my foot into the carburetor."

"I was just getting wound up again when I hit the intersection, and this lub pulled out on me. I cut for the barn and made it around him all right, but I couldn't bring her back, and the next thing I knew I was out in the pea patch, plowing corn."

oOo

To all the guesses going around as to when the war will end, we add that of Nehemiah A. Chubb, 72, bell ringer at the Gurnee Community church, who was an interesting caller at the Antioch News office recently. Mr. Chubb, who has made the study of foreign affairs his hobby, hazarded an estimate of two years.

Among his other hobbies are weather forecasting and coin collection. He had with him at the time of his call English copper pennies from the reign of George III, dated 1797 and 1807; a penny from the reign of Queen Victoria, dated 1894, the year of the opening of the Tower Bridge, which he attended; a half-crown piece with Victoria's picture, dated 1896, and a half-penny from the reign of Edward VIII, dated 1910.

He also displayed medals he had won, including the Western Morning News Fireman's medal, received at Plymouth, England, July 7, 1905, and a medal for wood-carving, awarded at the Plymouth-Devonport-Stonehouse industrial and photographic exhibit in 1903.

CHAPTER XII

"So we alter course a little, approaching it at 30 degrees on the stern. There are about fifty boats there, and it is the only moving target. Because it is a Navy boat, we know it will be tricky. They can figure your altitude, and know when your bomb is going to leave, computing it about the reverse of an antiaircraft shell's curve.

"About this time the Japs begin throwing up a hell of a heavy ack-ack barrage in a line dead ahead of us. Looking at it, all I think of is that picture in the laundry-soap ad—of dirty wash hanging out on a line and then the slogan 'That telltale gray!' Most of it is coming up from that cruiser. Through the telescope, I can see the flashes on her deck and then, twenty seconds later, our plane shakes.

"We've already lost altitude waiting for the Major (we'd boxed him in so he could stay with us and the Zeros wouldn't tear him to pieces), and he seems to have developed engine trouble. We're down to 23,000 feet. And I'm the lead bombardier.

"But now the whole plan is again altered: I get it over the command radio. We're to lay them in chains across this target. So I set up the bomb sight again, put the cross hairs on that cruiser, aiming short of its stern, figuring this way: It's a Navy boat, and maneuverable. So if it backs up, my left wing man will score a hit; if it increases speed, my right wing man will get it; and if it turns either toward us or away from us, one of my chain will hit it.

"It is a perfect run. I even have time to take my eye off the sight, and fire bursts at two more Zeros as they attack from the front. They start way out ahead, to the left and a little below us. Now, coming on in at me, they cross over and up, toward the center of my fuselage, their guns pounding, and then slip on back and dive straight down and away.

"I get one because he misuses. The peanut butter must be running down his leg and he is afraid to come too close. Anyway, he flips over way out in front—broadside to me, a beautiful target, and I pour the stitches into him.

"Then I jam my eye back onto that bomb sight. Everything is riding pretty—the cross hairs right where I want them, the bombs about ready to be released.

"It seems to the pilot and me that this is the longest run we've ever made. He finally calls down, asks how much longer it'll be. I look at the indicator, and you'd think the damned thing had stopped.

"About ten seconds," I tell him over the interphone.

"Yet they seemed like minutes. One second before the bombs leave my plane, I see that Jap cruiser starting to turn (he's figured our bomb-release line to the hair). He's turning toward us as I watch the bombs go down. By the time they arrived, the cruiser is three-fourths through a turn of 180 degrees. The first bombs are falling short—three of them. Now mine come—two direct hits on the cruiser, the other two going over. The plane back of me gets some direct hits. My left wing man's string is barely in front of the cruiser, my right wing man's string is barely behind it—the damned thing seems enveloped in bombs churning the water, and debris flying above the foam. Boy, that Japanese captain just turned the wrong way!

"But now our formation swings and heads for home, Zeros still swarming around us, and we're still losing altitude to stay back to protect the Major, who seems able to use barely enough throttle to keep her in the air. After forty minutes the last Zero drops away; they're short of gas and aren't chase us any further.

"Presently, over the command radio:

"Robinson to Skiles. Go ahead."

"Skiles answering. 'Go ahead.'"

"Radio the base at Malang to have an ambulance ready. We have two badly wounded men aboard."

"We wonder who they are. One is probably the tail gunner, since we saw Robinson's plane taking so many tracers there. The other must be their radio operator, or else they could have sent their own dot-dash message back to base."

"Meantime our radio operator is telling Malang to have the ambulance out. Our plane is now leading the formation. Major Robinson's just behind us. We've drifted slowly down to 4,000 feet altitude, protecting Robinson. Then, all of a sudden, Robinson's plane swoops down beneath us about 1,000 feet, and the incline sends it scooting on out in front of us, heading a little toward the coast of Borneo. Is Robinson going to beach her? And now over the command radio:

"Skiles to Robinson. Is there anything wrong?" our pilot asks. "But there is no answer. We watch. Now Major Robinson is making a gradual turn, as though to rejoin the formation. But halfway in the turn his plane starts nosing over, goes into a dive, goes faster—straight down at the sea. We watch, holding our breath. Just before he goes in, his tail elevator blows off. The poor guy must have had the stick clutched back into his stomach trying to pull out of that dive, and the terrible air pressure on those elevators ripped them off. There's a huge splash—flame—a spiral of black smoke, and a widening circle of yellows, reds, and black, which is burning gas and oil on that topaz-green water.

"The second after it hits I call Lieutenant Duphrane on the interphone.

"My God, Duke," I said, "did you see that?"

"Yes," he said. And then in a minute he said, "Thank God those Japs didn't see it."

"The formation circles above the dead Queen. We circle until the fire dies away, peering down at the widening disk of oil. But there is no sign of anything else on the surface.

"Until then it hadn't seemed like a battle—just a game. But now I feel like someone had kicked me in the guts. There were guys on there I'd drunk with. We'd sat around and lied to each other. I'd seen it happen, but I couldn't believe what I saw—it seemed like a bad dream.

"When we landed, all the crew assembled for the critique, each member dictating just what he had seen to the officer. That's when I was credited with three of the eight Zeros we knocked down. After the critique no one had much to say. We were all thinking about what we saw happen.

"They told us to go to the barracks and get some rest. But an hour later I found that the whole crew had, one by one, drifted back out to the plane—cleaning guns, improving gun positions, doing things we'd suggested back in the States but no one had ever got around to doing. Throwing away those small inadequate ammunition cans, and rigging the guns so you could set a whole box of ammunition in there, figuring ways of putting more guns in the nose—50-caliber ones that really pack a punch. And cussing hell out of the bottom turret. It has remote control—you look through a mirror and everything is backwards, and you have to know exactly where the plane is going before you can line the sights.

"We'd found out our machine-gun oil would freeze at high altitudes, and we were figuring how to clean and oil the guns so they would best operate up there. You couldn't tell the officers from the men (remember, we had no maintenance crews in Java; we did all the work ourselves) and my pilot had his coveralls on, installing an extra oxygen outlet in the tail. After seeing what had happened to Robinson's tail-gunner, he figured if his tail gunner got wounded, another man in the crew could go back there and they would both stay on oxygen.

"The E of course was a big advance over the D. But any new model will have little things wrong that you never find out until you take one up and fight it.

"All through Java we did it all ourselves—the officers right along with us, helping load bombs and checking valves. We flew in weather out there you wouldn't drive out to the airport in back here. But the Japs were flying it too; they'd come in strafing and we'd have to jerk our old mutts off the ground quick."

"Anyway," said Frank Kurtz, "we had stopped the Japanese there in Macassar Strait for a while. The little Dutch Navy helped, but mostly it was American air power. We'd sunk quite a gang of them, so the rest had to go home and lick their wounds, realizing they couldn't move in on Java until they had air control. This meant they would have to clean us out of our advance fields in Borneo and the Celebes. It wouldn't be hard, for the Dutch had no troops to speak of on these islands. Everything had had to be withdrawn to hold Java. But it took time for the Japs to take over our little advance bases at Samarinda and Kendari, and being new to war, we foolishly thought Time was on our side. We were thinking of those thousand planes. We hadn't learned that Time in war is a treacherous ally who favors anyone who will use him.

"But meantime Colonel Eubank had hauled me down to the ground for a while to do a different job. Too many wars were going on. The Japanese were running a pretty good one, but against them were the American Air Force, the Royal Dutch Air Force, the American,

Dutch, and Australian navies, all of us running wars of our own.

"Finally it was agreed that every night they'd deliver to me in Surabaya a safe-hand message, giving the position of every American ship in those waters. We'd swap information about operations, so everyone would be pulling together. It was a liaison job, and since I'd have to deal with Navy men so heavy with rank and gold braid on their sleeves they looked like they'd had their arms up to the elbows in scrambled eggs, the Colonel gave me a set of captain's bars, so I could talk up to them. Presently I was dealing with everyone—the Dutch and the British, too.

"The Dutch, for instance, were begging for help in Sumatra. It's that long island which parallels Malaya, pointing down in the direction of Java. The Japs weren't in Singapore yet, but already they were swarming across the narrow seas from Malaya trying to grab the oil refineries at Palembang. So, the Colonel sent the Forts."

"We got to Palembang the last week in January," said Sergeant Boone, the gunner. "The Dutch there were certainly swell to us. There is a huge refinery in the town, and they took us to a club sponsored by Standard Oil Company—a palace. All the club members would drop around to be sure the Air Corps had a place for the night. A Dutch officer took the rear gunner and myself to his quarters. He'd married an American girl, so he spoke good English. We had on only greasy coveralls, but he took us right into his quarters—all air-conditioned and mosquito-proofed. The native couple they had as cook and houseboy gave us the first home-cooked meal we'd tasted since the war.

"The Dutch officer was a fine-looking big blond guy. He brought out clean pajamas for us, and some of his uniforms we could wear for dinner. He was depressed. Early in January he had evacuated his wife and child to Java—for safety, although that seems queer to say now. He himself was staying behind, in command of native ground troops, to defend those refineries. He hadn't heard from his wife. You could see he was very much in love with her. Also that he didn't think much of the military setup they had in Sumatra, so he doubted that he would ever see her again.

"He'd been back on a visit to Holland just before the Germans came in. Since then he'd had only one letter from his mother—smuggled out. She had had a couple of German maids from over the border. They made good servants for the heavy work, but just before the surprise invasion they'd been called back to Germany. It was the same, she said, all over Holland. So no wonder, he said, that the Germans knew the name of every Dutch officer in Holland. The morning of the invasion, the Gestapo would knock at the door, and when the officer opened it, would shoot him down in cold blood. This was why, he explained, the Dutch Navy was so incapacitated for officers. He was very bitter. He was in wonderful physical condition—been leading native troops through the jungles. Said his wife was high up in the Java mountains and hoped she was safe. Next morning we left on a mission and never saw him again."

"We came up a little later," said the Bombardier, "and by the time we got there, the Japs were moving into the river's mouth, just below Palembang. The weather was overcast—a ceiling of 2,000, so we had to work down below that. None of us liked it, because a Fort is a hell of a big easy target so close to the ground—never built for that. As we came in, so close to the ground, our radio operator called Skiles on the interphone.

"Captain," he said, "oxygen doesn't agree with me, but I'm willing to begin chewing it any time now," and I broke in, "You can say that again."

"Captain Northcott was leading the mission—six planes we were, and when we sighted the target he called over the command radio, assigning our flight to a transport on the left.

"It was a monster, a huge Maru liner which I've seen as a luxury cruise boat tied up to the San Francisco docks. Suddenly she cut loose a hell of an antiaircraft barrage at us, all coming from this one transport—a regular Fourth of July at three o'clock in the afternoon. It was like looking down into a cone of fire, with this transport at the tip, and smoking red-hot rivets, they seemed like, whizzing up at us. They were rocking us around when suddenly we shuddered violently and almost went over on our back. An ack-ack shell had burst under one wing near the fuselage. Big pieces of it tore a huge hole just where the wing joins the fuselage, and one embedded itself just a few inches from Captain Skiles.

"We were already on our run, almost at the release line, and the jar had thrown out the bomb sight—it was completely inoperative. But I'd done some practice low-altitude bombing at Muroc back in the States, so I said the hell with a bomb sight—I'd guess at it. I was good and mad at the shaking-up we'd got."

"All right, you . . . here they come! I hollered, and dropped four in rapid succession. They landed in a cluster about twenty-five feet from the transport. The other four I released more slowly. We'd come down to 1,000 feet now, and that's low."

The importance of vanadium as a steel toughener has been known for almost 50 years, but only since the rich Peruvian deposits were discovered in about 1905 has it been possible to use it to any great extent.

BONDS TODAY WILL BUY IT TOMORROW!

OUR implement industries engaged in the war effort are learning a lot. To-day, this growing knowledge is going into the tanks and planes and guns with which our boys are doing such a magnificent job on the fighting fronts. But when the war's over, that "know-how" will go into new equipment for you. The tractors and cars and machinery which will replace your present equipment will be more efficient, easier to use. The manufacturers' post-war catalogs of new lines will make your mouth water!

Well, you'll be able to order as much as you want—if you have War Bonds stored away with which to pay the bill. On farms and ranches all over the country, wise, foresighted owners and tenants are keeping track of all the places where money will have to be laid out when the war is over. And against these future expenses they are salting down their dollars in War Bonds.

Your boy is learning a lot while he's away fighting. When he comes home he's going to know what first class equipment is, and he isn't going to be satisfied unless you have it. Right now, of course, the War Bonds you buy help back the attack and hasten the day of victory. But after the war, the money you invest in them will come back, for you and the boy to use together on the farm.

War Bonds are backed by Uncle Sam. That makes them just about the safest thing in the world. They're the easiest way to save your money, because you can buy them at bank or postoffice or Production Credit Association. They come in large or small denominations, and in different kinds, to suit your needs. The important thing is—keep on buying them!

YOU NEVER GET LESS THAN YOU LEND! And you can get $\frac{1}{2}$ more than you invest. When held 10 years, Series E War Bonds yield 2.9% interest compounded semi-annually. You get back \$4 for every \$3.

Of course, no one should cash a Bond unless he has to; but if an emergency comes along, Uncle Sam will redeem them in cash—at full purchase price—any time after you've held them 60 days. Don't hold back a single dollar unnecessarily from the purchase of War Bonds. YOUR HELP IS NEEDED TO WIN THIS WAR.

FACTS

About War Bonds (Series E)

You can buy War Bonds from your bank, postmaster, rural mail carrier or Production Credit Association. Don't wait. Do it by mail if you can't get to town!

For America's future, for your future, for your children's future—keep on buying WAR BONDS
